Progress through education; education through progress - these are two ideals sought by our generation as we endeavor to advance the intellectual potentials of our youth. Through the educational system of today, we attempt to reach ever-ascending heights of development in order to produce the alert minds, creative abilities and intellectual capabilities necessary to produce accomplishments worthy of our past and essential to our future. Progressive development follows academic achievement. By the application of knowledge and skill acquired through education, we are able to fulfill man's destiny to surge forward and upward. Our intellectual endeavors will be the launching pad for America's future successes. Scientific, social, and cultural advances, integral parts of any mobile society's hopes and dreams, can only be produced by mature, highly developed minds. The achievement of our nation's noble purpose of world peace and enlightenment is thus inevitably linked with the progress of education - they will advance or stagnate inexorably together.

DEDICATION

On December 21, 1962, the new Weymouth High School was opened to the students for the first time. The extensive plans and construction of this building were culminated in the fulfillment of a much awaited promise, the promise of a building erected for the continued improvement of education. We, the class of 1963, wish to convey our profound gratitude to the townspeople of Weymouth. As taxpayers, they have served as the constructors of our institutions, the builders of our youth. Through their support a dream of educational development has been realized. Without education, progress is impossible, for education is the indispensable step in the formation of ideas. It is therefore requisite that educational methods be continually improved and expanded, in order that they might provide the full advantage for continued development of the inquiring minds of today's youth. In our constantly changing world, and in the face of ideological strife, it has become even more essential that we prepare our youth mentally, physically and spiritually to carry out the enormous responsibilities of the adult world. Therefore, we recognize the value, materially and morally, of the new high school. Environment affects the work of students. With the introduction of modern architectural designing and the extension of classroom and school resources, individual achievement is accelerated; the students are inspired to continue in their endless search for knowledge. In acknowledgement of the immense contribution this new school will make to our future successes, we gratefully express our heartfelt thanks to the townspeople of Weymouth and dedicate to them this record of our apprenticeship.

IN THE SPIRIT OF PROGRESS

The huge glass door of the new Weymouth High School opens on an architectural panorama of beauty and utility. Color-splashed corridors lead the way to classrooms where long lines of windows brighten every room. The school stretches out on 12 different levels, rising by half flights of stairs. The audio-visual department has its own closed-circuit television studio, modern cameras, and recording equipment. The main gymnasium can easily be divided into two large basketball courts, and the auditorium of the new school represents one sixth of the building. Behind the stage are sound-proof music halls.

In the science department there are "laboratories of tomorrow." The vocational shops are lighted by saw teeth skylighting only, leaving the wall space free for machines and tools. One of the most beautiful rooms is the enormous cafeteria, a circular room surrounded by windows with ceiling beams striking out from the center dome like spokes on a wheel. In short, the finest facilities are offered to the students, promising them every opportunity to further their learning under the best of conditions. But wait - why not turn the page and see for yourself?

ADMINISTRATION AND FACULTY: PROGRESS THROUGH GUIDANCE

LEADERSHIP

Able and consistent leadership, the essential ingredient in the success of any enterprise, is an infinitely more integral component in the educational process, whose most valued end product is the leadership potential it nurtures in its charges, tomorrow's citizens. Without the guiding, steadying influence of administrators dedicated to the development of intellectual, moral, and physical strength and resource for our God and our country, no high school, regardless of the talent of its faculty or the scope of its physical plant, can long maintain its true course. Our continued success and achievement are the true criteria of our administrators.

INSTRUCTION

Among the many facets of our education, the one which we perhaps take most for granted and for which we are most grateful is the faculty - a group of more than a hundred men and women from every social, cultural, and educational level of American life, yet united by that intangible common bond of dedication to the enrichment of youth through education. "By their deeds ye shall know them" - and it is by their daily words and deeds of instruction, encouragement, guidance, and, yes, gentle chastisement that we have come to know and respect these people who have merited that grandest of titles - "teacher."

SERVICE

The efficiency of a school as large and complex as ours depends in great measure upon the support functions provided by the various administrative offices and departments. Without consistent and dependable service, the educational process could falter. That our school does operate so smoothly, even during such crises as the mid-year move to the new building, is high praise indeed to our behind-the-scenes stalwarts, the office staffs, who daily handle so many duties so well.

KEEPERS OF THE SCHOOL BEAUTIFUL

Weymouth High School is fortunate indeed to have a staff of custodians who are both capable and friendly. While involved with the myriad duties necessary to keep our vast building gleaming and functional, they are always ready with a smile and an assist whenever they are needed by faculty or students. In our constant efforts to put our best face forward, we owe much to Mr. Loud and his men, who contribute so much to the health and morale of all of us.

Arthur Cicchese, Supervisor of Custodians

Frank Bourdon, Alfred Cicchese, William Loud, Head Custodian; Archie Barker, Henry Marshall, Salvatore Abruzzese, Stephen Holt, William MacDonald, Charles Butler

CATERERS TO THE INNER MAN

Mrs. Ann Allen, Manager of Cafeteria

Louise Courchene, Mary Phillips, Mildred Cavanaugh, Hazel Mill

Adeline Wolfe, Ethel Donovan, Marie Fernald, Winifred Williams, Marion MacKenzie, Molly Embree, Elizabeth Matheson, Lora Lemieux, Ann Allen, Josephine Wheeler

Every school day the patience, stamina, and skill of our cafeteria's able cooks and servers are tested anew as two thousand hungry faculty, staff, and students descend for two hours in seemingly endless waves upon this beleaguered staff. And every day, led by Miss Watts and Mrs. Allen, these capable people meet the invasion armed with a varied and pleasing menu which stems the onslaught until the next day. We shall always remember the friendly service we enjoyed there.

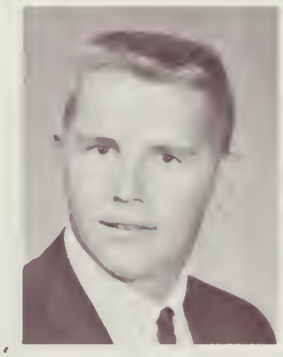
CLASS OFFICERS



Stephen Allison
President

Mary Rose Allen
Vice President

J. Elaine McClung

Since our educational system is designed to model the democratic way of life, each class annually chooses by free election members of the group to represent it as its officers. These officers must fulfill many functions, both ceremonial and responsible, on behalf of their class. Many times the class is judged by the officers it elects. It behooves each class, then, to elect as officers individuals of the highest moral calibre, scholastic integrity, and personal altruism, so that it will be ably represented. Our class, we are proud to note, has such officers.

CURRICULUM: PROGRESS THROUGH EDUCATION

I wish that bell would ring, Mr. Dow.

THE NEW BREED

It's been a long day.

Another school year has passed, and the quiet student who timidly opened the doors of Weymouth High School for the first time in September is gone. In his place stands a more confident individual, better prepared to cope with the problems presented by the school curriculum. He looks forward with anticipation to future years when he will be one of the "veterans" of high school routine, with the added privileges and responsibilities which this new position entails. The sophomore class have shown themselves to be readily adaptable to a situation strange to them, and to possess those qualities which should be manifested by every person who represents our high school. In their hands rests the future of our school. If they continue to uphold the standards which we have tried to sustain in the past, the future of this building will assuredly equal and even surpass that of the one which we left in December.

Enjoying one of their most memorable years, the juniors look back with fond memories upon their initial year in high school, and ahead to the culmination of twelve years of work. At this crucial time in the lives of our youth, the burden and privilege of responsibility suddenly becomes apparent. New vistas of learning and experience mature the individual and prepare him to face all the joys and disappointments that lie ahead. In the year which follows, this training will first begin to present itself as an integral part of every life. As upperclassmen, the juniors will find themselves unconsciously assuming the role of leaders in the school program. Every step brings them nearer to their ultimate goal, and the fulfillment of years of education and training. Therefore we urge the junior class to make full use of the opportunities of the coming year.

Junior Officers:

George Manning (Treas.)
Linda Badavas (Sec't.)
Joe Hassan (Pres.)
Mary Lou Lyons (V. pres.)

THE FINISHED PRODUCT

Mmm. . . .late again, I see.

Youth is the embodiment of imagination and hope; there lies just beyond the reach of every young individual promise of a new and exciting life, the hope of acquiring the wisdom and maturity of adult men and women. Before we, the senior class of 1963, are able to prove ourselves worthy of the privileges of this society, we must be prepared to meet the responsibility of maintaining a high standard of moral and intellectual growth. We feel that the three years which we have spent at Weymouth High School have served a vital part in achieving this. We have had the opportunity to associate with other people and have learned to sense the inner value of each individual. Progress and education have worked hand in hand to insure the development of our minds and ideals. The school seems to reflect the pattern of our own conception of progress, as we constantly look forward, not waiting for the world to come to us, but watching it unfold before us through our own efforts.

MOLDING THE MODERN MIND

An increasing number of today's high school students are desirous of furthering their education in widely varied colleges and universities. In order to prepare students to meet the requirements of these selective institutions, Weymouth High School offers the College Preparatory Course. The ability to consider, reflect upon, and inquire is promoted in such courses as geometry, algebra, trigonometry and calculus. As the world progresses, new conflicts arise; an understanding of the existing problems is essential for forming a solution or compromise. History courses and Problems of Democracy show how history repeats itself and can be changed. The advancements of science lead to extended research work in courses of chemistry, biology, and physics. The college course curriculum is rounded out by English classes and three foreign languages. With the willing and unfaltering aid of our well-qualified teachers, sophomores, juniors, and seniors are prepared both emotionally and intellectually for college life.

EFFICIENCY IS THE WATCHWORD

Judy Brewer — a whiz with numbers.

Each year Weymouth High School prepares hundreds of capable students to fill positions as secretaries, office workers and countless others necessary to the staff of any successful business corporation. Carefully prepared courses in such essentials as Economics, Law, Bookkeeping and Business Administration are open to those students who wish to enter this field. Fortunately, the level of instruction and clerical equipment offered to these students has kept pace with the high improvements in office technology. By using these advantages to the best of their knowledge, by developing skills in shorthand, typing and bookkeeping, business students are able to enter their respective fields with a more extensive idea of exactly what is expected of them and what the work will involve.

Industry and mechanics are rapidly advancing in every field as the standard of living improves. It will be essential in the future to have capable and efficient men to handle the complex machinery of the factories and plants and to provide the population with the materials necessary for comfortable and convenient living. Through the vocational course at Weymouth, we strive to give the boys a thorough understanding of such important sides of our changing world. They are offered courses in auto body, graphic arts, sheet metal, electronics, cabinetmaking and carpentry which prepare them for positions immediately after graduation or for apprenticeships. The theory learned during the classroom periods is to put to use not only in the well-equipped shops in the school but also in the community. From overhauling engines to laying the plans and foundations for the modern home, the students at Weymouth Vocational Technical School are truly making progress through education.

SPIRIT WITH ANIMATION

From the first rousing cheer to the last second of play, our cheerleaders have given all their might to urge our teams on to victory. Captained by Elaine McClung and supported by the pep club, Ferdinand and students, they have managed with tremendous spirit and enthusiasm to inspire the Maroons to make their best efforts on the field and on the basketball court. Judging by the students response, our cheerleaders were tops, for students participated willingly and proudly in the skits and cheers of rallies and games.

Things are looking up!

Foursome with Finesse

The twirling of batons, the waving of maroon and gold flags, and the high-stepping of our majorettes during half-time is a very impressive sight to spectators. Their enthusiasm and vigor convey a feeling of pride in the school and in the performances of our students. This year's majorettes, headed by Carolyn Robinson, are Bobbie Sassa, Jane King, and Kathy O'Shaughnessy. As they lead the band down the football field or lead a parade after a game, we can be proud of these girls who are an asset to the student body.

Battling their way down the gridiron, our stalwart Maroons proved a challenge to all opponents. Coached by John Fisher, Weymouth High's football team made the students and supporters very proud of their efforts. After overcoming a first game defeat, Weymouth was triumphant in a contest with North Quincy's Red Raiders and the Whalers of New Bedford by scores of 20-6 and 20-18 respectively. A frustrating loss to the Waltham Watchmakers by the narrow margin of one point was assuaged by a 20-0 shut-out over Quincy, and in the final traditional game of the season with Brockton, the Weymouth team thrilled a capacity crowd by rallying to tie Brockton 8-8. The strong offensive of the team was backed by Bill Schleiff and Eddie O'Brien, who blocked superbly; and the most outstanding plays of the season were the result of steady teamwork among players Joel Ouellet, Craig MacDonald, John Thompson, Jim Stohl, Dewey Borellini, Steve Allison, and Jim Dunn.

This year was a building year for the Cross Country Team. Interested boys spent their spare time developing their co-ordination by running over the two and one-half mile course. Bill "Peter" Scott and Dick Parker proved to be the outstanding senior boys this year. Bill Downey, Larry O'Connor and Dave Sjostedt were the top three underclassmen. Captain of this year's team was Mike O'Connor and elected co-captains for next season were Bill Downey and Larry O'Connor. Next year the boys will participate in several meets on the South Shore. They will be seen in the South Shore Meet and the State Meet, the top two events of the Cross Country season in the area. Until then they will be seen participating in Spring Track or running along the streets of town.

THE SHARPSHOOTERS

You see, coach, it was like this. . .

Led by the outstanding playing of seniors Bob King and Dick Boyd, our basketball team sparked a renewed interest in the sport and have been a credit to their supporters. Revived from a somewhat disappointing 1962 season, this year's team has compiled a fine winning record. Coach William Kearns credits our success to the great amount of teamwork exemplified by his boys. Although Weymouth plays in a strong Suburban League against such teams as Rindge Tech and Brockton, Frustrated Frank Wisneski.

Hey, I've got the ball! Steve Quintin

we narrowly missed qualifying for the Tech Tourney and finished in a respectable position in the league standings. The two starting seniors received able support from the outstanding play of the underclassmen. Junior Frank Wisneski and sophomore Dave Ellison hold the key to next season. A strong defense and good scoring capabilities, coupled with added experience, should certainly carry Weymouth High into Tourney competition next year.

Speed and marksmanship were the key words during this past winter's season with Weymouth High School's hockey team. Coached by William Dempsey, the boys worked together in a strong unit making their best efforts whether they won or lost. Holding on to fourth place in the South Shore League, the boys utilized the offensive-defensive strategies learned during their long and intensive practice sessions. The impressive record includes victories over King Philip 4-0; Scituate 4-2; and Canton 5-1. Under the leadership of seniors Dave Johnson and Mike De Luca, the team exhibited power and enthusiasm. As leading scorer, Dave proved to be a Weymouth stalwart by demonstrating extraordinary offensive plays, while Dick Elliot stopped many key shots in the goal. Because of Mike De Luca's versatility and sophomore Bob Sheehan's developing abilities, the fans have indeed seen talent flashing across the ice.

POLAR BEAR CLUB

The admirable performance given by our winter track team this year was a credit to the school as the boys broke school records and took high scores in various meets. Tom "Tucker" Hall broke the school record for the six-hundred yard dash and placed sixth in the State Track Meet at the Boston Armory. Pete Shinney placed fourth in the three-hundred yard dash, while Joel Ouellet came in fourth in the meet's shot put event; and Mike O'Connell flew over the hurdles to break another school record. The team is coached by Mr. Dudley O'Leary, and the boys are given constant work-outs for improving their timing, speed and general physical condition. This year the development of these skills in a more extensive program has paid off; and we can expect an equally successful season next year with the assistance of such juniors as Bill Downey and Steve Temple; and sophomores Mike Busa, Art Doine, Pete McCarthy and Glenn Gately.

MASTERS ON THE MAT

The principal object of the wrestling team is to train the squad in the fundamentals of grappling and holding, and the development of precision and timing. The boys are taught the value of using measured movements and of anticipating the actions of their opponents. Under the supervision of Mr. John Hill, the team exercises most every day in the boys' gym. While there, they are seen engaging in bouts among themselves, attempting new holds or perfecting old ones. Among some of the leading members of the team are Joel Ouellet, an excellent prospect for the state championship meets, Bob Huntington, who deserves praise for his agility on the mats, and Jimmy DeCoste, a strong contender in the weight class. Through participation in this sport, these boys have progressed in both the physical and moral sense. Thus the team has proved itself a worthy member of the athletics division of Weymouth High School.

PACE SETTERS

Running, jumping, and weight events made up the daily program followed by Coach Dudley O'Leary and the members of the spring track team. The team's participation in competitions with the other teams in the Suburban League served as extra preparation for the big events of the season — the State Meet and the St. John's Relays in Danvers. Emphasized in this strenuous outdoor program were the running events at distances up to a mile; the high jumps, broad jumps and pole vault; and the field events, including the discus, javelin and shot put. The boys usually concentrated on one or two events and could be seen arduously practicing daily before each meet. In anticipation of the State Meet, the boys pinned their hopes on Pete Shinney, who placed fourth in the three-hundred yard dash last year in the State Meet. Other outstanding trackmen who led Weymouth on to victory were Mike Casey, Tom Hall and Bill Armstrong. All in all another successful season was enjoyed by our spring track men.

WITH A CRACK OF THE BAT

Defensive consistency was the principal aim of Weymouth High School's baseball team this season. Good fielding is the backbone of any baseball team, and with a strong nucleus returning from last year's squad, Coach George Player fielded a much-improved squad. The shortstop position was greatly strengthened by the above-average play of Senior Jim Stohl. Blinding the opposition with his whizzing fast-ball, Junior John Burns ranked as the number one pitcher, backed up by Senior Craig MacDonald, who last year successfully overpowered an undefeated Newton club. Dick Boyd provided the offensive punch assisted by the capable Bill Foley. Other boys who played an important role in the success of the club were: Cliff Willy, Charlie Melanson, Colin Bell and Mike De Luca.

THEY'RE UP TO PAR

A challenge was presented to this year's golf team, coached by John Fisher, as they endeavored to meet the record of last year's championship. Emphasis was placed on developing their co-ordination and timing, and furthering their mastery of golf technique. Each boy was required to maintain a high standard of playing form and an average score of eighty. Contributing to the team's excellent record were players such as Norm Forsythe, Ken Ohlson, Steve Marshall, Chris Hartley and Charlie Lowe. With patience and skill the boys have completed another successful season, certainly maintaining the reputation gained by the previous efforts of last year's team.

THE RAQUET SQUAD

With the ever increasing interest in tennis as a spectator sport, Weymouth High School's Tennis Team has enjoyed an interval of vitality unequaled in its short history — thanks to Mr. Dempsey, whose unflagging interest and excellent instruction have maintained a high level of enthusiasm among the members of the group. Several boys who had played in previous years returned to again score points, and enjoy once more the thrill and excitement which are a part of the sport. David Johnson, Howard Barnhart, Robert Paone, Paul Cameron and Dean Cushing, all fine players, have all displayed their skill for at least two years consecutively. Because of its growing prominence as a part of interscholastic competition, the team expects to enlarge its program in the coming year.

Don't move, Girls!

Form and grace have been the goals of the gymnastic team in their second year of practice. Each girl has come to realize the importance of taking part in an organized program of exercise and tumbling and of learning how to apply her skills in daily life. At a planned pace, the girls gradually become accustomed to the vigorous practice sessions while developing both co-ordination and agility. One excellent example of the value and importance of such a program is the participation in gymnastic meets every season. The competition serves as an incentive to the girls as they do walkovers, flips, backbends, and somersaults; and it also reveals the successful results of a year's work through teamwork and co-operation.

Originating this year under the direction of Mr. Hayes, the boy's gym team is preparing for possible interscholastic competition next year. This is a monumental task since there is no one on the team with prior experience. However, the response was enthusiastic, and Mr. Hayes is very optimistic about its future. Outfitted with the best equipment in the new gym, the boys have practiced many new stunts. The rigorous program includes the use of the high bar, the horse and parallel bars, as well as long horse vaulting and tumbling. Also incorporated in the over-all physical development program is free exercise. This is comprised of tumbling on the floor and vigorous workouts.

ACTIVITIES: PROGRESS THROUGH PARTICIPATION

LESSONS IN DEMOCRACY

Norman Forsythe, Mr. Horrigan, Mary Rose Allen

Essential to the functioning of the student body is the Student Council. Composed of elected representatives of the school, this organization is the liaison between students and administration. Among the successful activities conducted this year were the annual book fair, the student-faculty basketball game, and the "Friendship Frolic," the proceeds of each affair going to the scholarship fund. With cafeteria facilities for all students, it was found that a patrol was necessary to keep order and neatness in the cafeteria. To build better relations with other high schools, exchange days were held, where student council members of other schools were guests of Weymouth while our members visited their schools. Credit is due to the adviser Mr. Horrigan and the officers, President Bob Leone, Vice President Bob Huntington, Recording Secretary Paula Kachadorian, Corresponding Secretary Karen Gelotte, and Treasurer Pam Peterson for their leadership.

Stephen Butler, Lois Ryder, Co-Editors

The Reflector, as our school magazine, has become a melting pot for the literary talents of Weymouth High School. Through this magazine, advised by Miss Andem and co-editors Lois Ryder and Stephen Butler, students are able to express themselves creatively and to gain satisfaction through seeing their work in print. Amidst the confusion and disorder of deadlines, proofreading, writing, mailing, and layout come the issues which have consistently won awards for excellence. The art staff carries out the important function of illustrating the magazine. Each article is illustrated individually by a capable member of the staff. Thus literary and artistic efforts are co-ordinated so that the end product may be both enjoyable to the reader and worthy of merit in the eyes of the school.

Another deadline, another long day.

As the graduating class reflect upon their high school years, they recall many memorable moments. These are the activities participated in, the courses struggled through, the friendships gained, and all the small, simple events which combine to form treasured memories never to be forgotten. Although these recollections may tend to fade in their minds as the years slip by, they are kept alive forever in the class yearbook. This memento, the Campus, represents the combined efforts of Mr. John Kearney, Mr. Philip Dolan, and the Campus staff. Each phase of production presents new challenges and experiences, all of which require a sense of responsibility and perseverance. From editor-in-chief to copy-reader, the tasks are ever-present, each presenting its little or gigantic problem, resulting in a minor crisis or chaos. The most memorable moments of Campus work are those of laughter shared by the staff, the tears which follow so many disappointing and hopeless moments and the indefinable sense of belonging as a result of contributing to the class. These can never be forgotten. These memories will remain always in the minds and hearts of those who worked together to create the 1963 Campus, their contribution to the graduating class of '63.

EDUCATION'S FUTURE

Education is necessary for the development of the minds of our youth, and well-trained, understanding teachers are essential for this process. Many students who aspire to the teaching profession participate in Weymouth High's Chapter of the Future Teachers of America and benefit from the many activities offered by the organization Advised by Miss Dorothy Pearson, members learn that teaching is hard work, constant responsibility, and a source of great reward. Through actual observations and practice teaching, the students are able to see and to understand the fundamentals necessary for successful instruction. This year's program, led by Pres. Regina Clarke, was considerably broadened to include a mother's tea and bimonthly meetings.

DAUGHTERS OF HYGEIA

The nursing profession, one of the most honored and necessary careers, is the goal of many Weymouth High School girls. The desires for giving service and love to fellow man, which are so needed in this phase of the medical sciences, is strengthened through the activities of the Future Nurses Club of America. Since many of the members are eagerly anticipating going into training and have many questions about this exciting future, much of the program centers about investigating the opportunities and adventures open to the girls. This investigation is in the form of field trips, guest speakers and information given to the girls by their adviser, Mrs. Mary Hoyle, R.N. With their background in the Future Nurses Club under the leadership of President Dianne Cameron, the future nurses from Weymouth High will certainly be creditable assets to the community.

TAKE A LETTER. . .

Ready to start

The secretarial position is one of the most numerous and yet one of the most responsible careers available to a girl. In preparation for the responsibilities of this occupation, Weymouth High has a program for senior girls outstanding in the business course. These girls act as personal secretaries to staff and faculty members. They assume the burden of typing and mimeographing educational materials and help in correspondence and business tasks. It is an honor for a girl to be chosen by Miss Norris as a senior secretary. Each one realizes that she must do her work neatly and accurately, and it is imperative for her to keep all work confidential. In this way, the secretary acquires more practice in the business skills, as well as a sense of the responsibilities and confidence she must assume once she enters into the professional world.

EXECUTIVES OF TOMORROW

Responsible for the maintenance of the American economic system are the people skilled in business procedures. In order to meet the needs of our fast-moving business world, well-qualified and conscientious persons are required to fill positions at every level of responsibility and proficiency. This club provides its members with interesting and varied programs, each with the purpose of further acquainting the members with the future positions they will be holding. President Judith von Berg and Miss Dorothy MacGregor, Adviser, devised a most rewarding program for the members. The activities included field trips to John Hancock Life Insurance Co., Fisher Junior College and Burdett Junior College. Representatives from Burdett, Katherine Gibbs and the Social Security office in Boston spoke on the opportunities their institutions offer. As an added activity to make the girls realize the value of money, the sale of cookbooks, Weymouth pins and bracelet charms was conducted throughout the year.

Welcome, Amigos: Mr. Cotugno, Mr. Sternberg and friends

Newly organized this year is the Spanish Club, which enables interested Spanish students to further their education in this language. They also study Spain's heritage in an informed manner. Mr. Sternberg and Mr. Cotugno supervise this group which is fortunate to have Christina and Roberto Moreira, age 16 and 15 respectively, as officers. Having come from Uruguay this past summer, they were more than eager to join a club which brings the students of Weymouth a better understanding of their language. Both took courses in English, Spanish and typewriting to help them in understanding our language. They had studied English less than a year before coming to the United States. Buena Suerte! to these new Americans! The Spanish Club has definitely begun with a genuine Spanish flavor with our two new students.

Dan Walker — explaining linear programming

Adding to and multiplying its membership this year, the Math Club is growing under the leadership of Mr. Alvah Raymond, adviser, and President Bob Leone. This unique club affords students interested and capable in mathematics opportunities to delve into the aspects of the subject not taken up in the classrooms. Included in the program are such topics as linear programming, rules of divisibility and problems relating to space travel. Acting as a subset of the Math Club is the Math Team. Sophomores, Rebecca Hamlin and Don Casperson; juniors, Barbara Fairbanks, Linda Durkee and Bob Whittle; and seniors, Susan Fickett, Ted Eckberg and Ken Nicholas, were chosen for this group to represent Weymouth High. These students participate in inter-scholastic competitions. Our team came up with an excellent record in their first year of competition.

SCHOOL SPIRIT IN ACTION

Campaigners for school spirit

An organization which has gained universal admiration and respect from citizens throughout the community is the Junior Moral and Spiritual Values Committee. This year's program placed much emphasis on the theme "School Spirit." In order to keep the students well-informed, the committee took charge of the bulletin boards outside the cafeteria and changed them every week. A more efficient procedure for electing class officers was developed, and discussions were held concerning the general improvement of school spirit. The final project and the most enterprising of the year was a volunteer service program covering three areas. These included helping the blind, aiding in nursing homes and in hospitals, and tutoring Weymouth High School students, all of which were enthusiastically supported by the members.

KEYS TO CITIZENSHIP

Keys to public service, vocational training for the future, and better citizenship are within the reach of every member of Weymouth High School's Key Club. Composed largely of Seniors, this community service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Club is active in the school and town. The activities conducted during the year under President Steve Butler's direction included "slave days," car washes, dances, and paper drives, the proceeds of which went into a scholarship fund. Because of its outstanding service, the Weymouth High School chapter of the Key Club was presented an award from Key Club International, the first award of its kind to be presented to a Weymouth High School organization. Such functions performed for the benefit of others broaden horizons and aid the boys of the Key Club by giving them experiences as both leaders and followers. Mr. Swanson and Mr. Olson have given to these students an invaluable opportunity to prove to themselves and others their capabilities as future members of a community.

JUST CAUSE FOR ARGUMENT

To argue for the sake of argument is one thing, but to debate to prove a point is another. The Weymouth High Debate Club develops this ability to prove a point either in the affirmative or negative. This year, the team participated in contests and speech festivals, and made an excellent presentation at all events. The club logged many miles as it traveled to Dartmouth, University of New Hampshire, Lynnfield, Shrewsbury, and several local high schools. Jim Dowgialo, Russ Davison, and Walter Pearson, all members of the varsity division, have excelled in the art of debating after only two years of training. In order to give sophomores an extra year of experience, Mr. Storms, with the aid of Mr. West, inaugurated a novice sophomore debate group. These students, too, developed the ability to express an idea clearly and convincingly.

Able assistants: Jacqueline Alley, Christine Cormack, Pamela Seymour, Norma Jean Larson, Linda Ruge, Signian Matson, Nancy Holt, and Sheila Hanabury

In addition to material covered in classroom work, much information is gained through the resources available in the high school library. Ably helping the students in their research are the new librarians Mrs. Rita Diment and Miss Fay, and their many student assistants. This year of changes for Weymouth High saw many exciting changes for the library. In addition to completely new surroundings, a thousand new books were added to the shelves and new editions of reference books were made available to the students. The library assistants were given the tasks of unpacking, processing, covering and shelving these new books. Although these were time-consuming responsibilities, they were engrossing, and no one complained of not being able to read the international time clock.

FILMS IN FOCUS

It works like this. David Lindsay, Peter Young, John Minihan

As the film begins to roll and the lights go out, one of thirty licensed classroom operators of the Audio-Visual Aids Club begins a service that is rendered to teachers daily. While assisting faculty, these cameramen of the future are learning the intricate mechanisms of tape recorders, film projectors, and other reproductive equipment. The members of this club are boys who have a technical interest in sound, motion, and photography. They are presented the opportunity to talk with and learn from trained persons in this field and to broaden their knowledge of other positions and fields that are available. As a further example of progress in education, a new program has been inaugurated into the Audio-Visual Aids Department – closed circuit television.

ASSISTANTS IN SCIENCE

Bob Donovan, Ted Ekberg, Ken Nicholas

Under the supervision of Mr. Ghiorse, Weymouth High School's lab assistants assume the responsibility for the orderly condition of the science laboratories. Led by Kenneth Nicholas, a top physics student, a crew of about eight boys set up and co-ordinate laboratory equipment to coincide with the weekly lab periods. They keep much of the machinery in working condition and check defective or broken gear. This machinery, involved with heat, light, sound, and electricity offers a complete and comprehensive account of the working of the sciences. This year's major project was the transporting of equipment from the old high school, which involved keeping an accurate inventory of all equipment, plus the unpacking and assembling of the Omega Enlarger, the heart of our newly constructed photography dark room.

EARNING WHILE LEARNING

Providing the retail course students with an extra-curricular activity related to their subjects is the Distributive Education Club of America. This national organization of over thirty thousand members is divided into state chapters and local clubs. The Weymouth Club is composed of the fourteen members of the distributive education course. The major activity this year was the sale of "fried marbles." The money raised through this activity provided expense paid trips for student representatives to the state and national conventions. Other activities planned by Mrs. Doucette and organized by President Pam Selwood were discussions on retail selling, demonstrations of effective displays, and field trips.

To hear the lark begin his flight,
And singing startle the dull night,

The above excerpt from "L'Allegro" was artistically expressed by all interested students in a contest sponsored jointly by Mr. Longridge and Mr. Dolan. The winners, Cecil Meacham, David Marzioni, Anne Finch, Susan Crawford, and Donald Cassagrande, were awarded tickets to the South Shore Music Circus.

To speak well is to promote understanding. The students of Weymouth High participated in district and state speech festivals, reciting poetry and humorous or serious verse, speaking extemporaneously, and reading expressively. Through their experiences, the students gained a wider perspective and, thus, promoted understanding in the various techniques of speech.

The outlook for peace, freedom, and progress in the world of tomorrow depends heavily on informed, experienced leadership. Because the United Nations is working toward these goals, it is vital that young people are aware of its functions. The East Coast Model United Nations Conference is an opportunity for eight hundred students from East Coast high schools to act as delegates to a mock United Nations.

THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Stringing along with Mr. Burke

Music is a source of pleasure for people of all ages; it can catch one up in the excitement of a parade or give hours of enjoyment to a listening audience with the soft strains of an orchestra or the harmony of a choral group. The Music Department of Weymouth High School has given this same enjoyment to students and townspeople as it carries out an organized program of music rehearsals and performances each year. Comprised of stringed instruments this year, the orchestra hopes to grow with the addition next year of the brass and woodwind instruments. The musicians of the Band concentrate their major efforts in preparing for graduation, football games and parades which not only bring recognition to the school, but afford participants opportunities to prove their abilities as they try out for district and New England honors. Honors this year went to Priscilla Hodges, Bruce Manuel and Dave Leone who made District, All-State, and New England Competitions; William Hodgens, Russell Dexter, and Marian Fredericks, all of whom were contestants in the New England Regional Competitions. The instruction of Mr. Burke, Mr. Warren and Mr. Aliapoulis has indeed reaped rewards for both the students and the school.

RALLY ROUSERS

Ready for a big game.

Give me a "W"!

Part of the excitement and color of athletic events is the cheering section. Fortunately for Weymouth High, there is a very active Pep Club which enthusiastically backs up the cheerleaders at every football game, at home and away. Not believing in the saying, "Children should be seen and not heard," this year's Pep Club cheered loud and long in their bright maroon sweatshirts. Cheering the loudest was President Linda Gaudreau, who conducted weekly business meetings during the football season. Because the Pep Club did such a fine job and made a good showing at the games, it was provided with a reserved section at the all-important Thanksgiving football game. It cannot be doubted that Weymouth's improved record this year was due in part to the efforts of this club. Without the enthusiastic encouragement from the stands, our boys could not have gone on to victory. The enthusiasm and spirit displayed by this year's edition of the Pep Club certainly augers well for many seasons to come of successful student participation in sports.

WHO SAYS THEY'RE OLD?

In cooperation with the Student Council, a group of the men faculty of Weymouth High played the varsity basketball team again this year for the benefit of its Scholarship Fund. Teachers participating included: Mr. Powers, Mr. Beck, Mr. Kearney, Mr. Ferguson, Mr. Player, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Kearns, Mr. Carven, Mr. West, Mr. Fletcher, Mr. Di Martinis, Mr. Dempsey, Mr. Ghiorse, as scorekeeper and Mr. Mazzola as referee. Supporting them, were a group of enthusiastic cheerleaders: Jeanne Wood, Elaine Slavinsky, Lorraine Emanuel, Joanne O'Neil, Linda Stetson, Joan Geffers, Linda Saraceno, Marge Santacroce, and Mary Lou Lyons as water girl. This combination of youth and age, student and Faculty, produced a game which illustrated good sportsmanship and helped create better teacher-student relationship through old-fashioned fun and recreation.

Integrity and intellectual growth are the essential qualities forming the character of a good citizen. It is the goal of every school system to encourage the development of the kind of individual who is representative of such a citizen. Weymouth High School is proud to acknowledge these eleven students as representatives of the following attributes: leadership, citizenship, integrity, responsibility, and sportsmanship. They exemplify the high standard of achievement and accomplishment of the senior class of 1963. They have proved themselves worthy of this honor as they have worked willingly and responsibly in every phase of activity and course they have participated in.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We, the staff of the 1963 Campus, wish to express our sincerest gratitude to those people who helped and showed us their kindness in so many ways during the production of our yearbook. To John and Madeline Hobbs, we especially want to reveal our deepest thanks for the exceptional help they have accorded us in the course of the year. To Doug Mitchell of Burdett and Company and Art Keefe of S. K. Smith Co., we would also like to extend our profound thanks for their unfaltering patience and advice which contributed so much to the completion of the yearbook. Also, in recognition of the contributions and cooperation given by the administration, faculty and secretaries we take this opportunity to extend heartfelt gratitude on behalf of the entire class.
